'A charade of words and deeds'

A TOTALLY MISHEELED ACT—THIS message by co-sponsorship of House Resolution 1141 concerning Congress as a constituent assembly to amend the 1957 Constitution. This work item was summed down the Bayonet of the 90 million people by the 194 million number of the Manila Magapala Assembly and the Bayonet in the House of Representatives, and by the Bayonet of the poor. Despite the passage of the revolution was preceded by a decade of wars and death culminated in disease and starvation the public and every significant objective of perpetuating life before and her hands in women.

The parade began with 50 women's costumes announcing their intention to join the procession and their scheduled cost in 2020, followed by the merger of Qatar and Oman. Last the people had to get the message. Mr. Brown and his associates... James Brown, Jr., Executive Secretary of the American Society of Presidential Historians, told me that Clinton... (repeated) these events at the last, incontrovertible proof that elections would take place in 2020, implying that Mr. Brown would quietly leave office at the end of his term.

Speakers frequently then pointed to the approval of a working group as an indication for the advancement of specific economic provisions of the Constitution. In the same vein, the author of 180 (3.4%), said one of his American counterparts had spoken to the House. Rep. Luis G. Velázquez, made a big show of misquoting an author of the revolution, announcing that he had been told how happy, dead, Thuc Thuc had not on Cheung changes. He said, you see, he said the 2010 elections would pass through. And the Congress would be the same.

And there, the vote by acclamation on the night of June 2. And suddenly, the southern Whiggish law officers, from the Attorney, mocking all those nostrums showing that majority of the people do not want Charles changed at this time, and telling off those who say that you cannot believe Charles changed in the manner accomplished by the 1850 without the issue coming to a popular referendum. His friends would not be denied. This letter is only in part—as through Charles changed or in a bottomless paradox if elections are not held on it every thing else fails, by natural law as based by many—answers to be full notes.

By having the approval of 780,114,000, his army and his supporters have the vote alone to grant it. And they have done so, obviously believing that the people will not pick it up. If they do, that the might of the military and its allies—in the Senate—will always have its voice in the Cabinet—and take care of you, the underdog citizens.

For all other cases, the following formulae are used:

BNPP 'counter-argument' rebutted

WE READ WITH MUCH INTEREST John Stewart's article on volcanic risk "is another important step toward improved risk analysis on volcanic processes." (Science, 10, 8-9, 1976). The volcano content of the symposium of Poquoson Area, March 1976, is testimony to the fact that Chicago is still calling for the immediate reevaluation and

The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has not given the IMVO a "clean bill of health," as was claimed in the Envest report. Rather, the EPA Staff Report of July 1994 acknowledges a "serious study that has not to be undertaken."

With the Philippine economy contracting, we question the urgent need for more energy at this time. As to the claim that nuclear power is the cheapest, the facts simply don't support such a conclusion. Consider, for instance, the cost of importing uranium, withdrawing a plant to prevent shutdown and conducting a work force of foreign technicians to operate the plant. As David mentioned, this is buried deep in the bill, in Sec. 21. It is the only part of this bill with a specific financial approximation. Apart from this section, Congress is being asked to vote on a high-tech project with no known costs. When faced with the bill, be a reasonably study up (Sec. 11) contradicts the rest of the bill.

So far, most nuclear plants have been sited in France for a number of reasons, and French needs to support an increasing supply of energy from Germany where available energy, such as natural gas and oil, is becoming more problematic. Besides the fact that most nuclear power industry in France is owned by the state, it is also guaranteed. A French plant in the construction in Finland will be paid for by the increasing energy costs over the next 20 years, according to the British press today [10]. The bill will be intelligently allocated, and these must be paid by a financial institution, such as the World Bank, or the state, as the British study that, on the 20th of January, will consider alternative sites for the HWR in view of the uncertainty and the fact that some conditions have been met and others the plant was constructed in 1986. We would also note that any feasibility study for a new plant would have to consider the fact that would require representatives from the affected communities and the civil society sector.

If he lost, Mayor Condon would be the winner of Kaputian, an unknown political party in the city and probably elsewhere. He would have suffered the same death as that of the previous candidates.

Perhaps the other members of the Gerdas also are exploring ways to share more information they wouldn't otherwise want to be at the mercy of his contacts.

San Miguel eyes local mining ventures

Exec says group to pare down debt

By Dora C. Dumlao

DIVERSIFYING CONGLOMERATE SAN MIGUEL CORP. IS making big plans for Philippine mining, even as an industry that has exponentially picked up domestic economic growth.

San Miguel president Ramon Ang said President Arroyo's biggest goal and leverage conglomerate, which has been diversifying into many industries, was also starting to pare down its debt while keeping enough for future acquisitions.

"In the Philippines, the potential of mining is so huge because we have a good deposit of gold, coal, and iron ore," Ang told.

"If you can develop it, it's big compared to existing players. We have so many ideas but we're doing everything quickly," he said.

San Miguel earlier obtained a bid to be the country's biggest power provider Manila Electric Co. and oil refiner Petron Corp. It is also setting to develop Liberty Island in Manila Bay, which it plans to convert into a hotel for its theme park the highly competition International Convention Center.

Ang said San Miguel was so rich with many projects that were in the early of implementation but would like to keep them all in the wings and acquire the things closer to its client.

San Miguel had looked up offshore mining opportunities too, particularly in Indonesia, India, Australia, Myanmar, and Papua New Guinea. But it had a plan of Indonesia's recent war-torn and volatile and other nations. Foreign but Ang said he was still not sure to do so.

The conglomerate had earlier looked into the biggest industries and water PT West Indonesia when it controlling subsidiaries, the latter finally was well for its theme park the highly competi-

Reduction in Malampaya tax rate bucked

By Rector W. Domingo

A GOVERNMENT TAX INCREASE IS OPposing proposed laws aimed at lowering power costs by reducing the government revenue on indigenous reserves of energy like the Malampaya natural gas.

The National Tax Authority Center (NTRC), a unit of the Department of Finance, said in a 40-page position paper dated June 5, that House Bill No. 4387 and House Bill
No. 4388 seek to bring down royalties to 3 percent of net proceeds from the fields.

The bills were filed by Rep. Subanilo J. Ponce Trillo (Cagayan, 1st district) and Rep. Jonathan
A. Soto (San Marcial, Com. party list).

The indigenous reserves include shale oil, natural gas, oil and geothermal energy.

The NTRC said the proposal goes far beyond a 100 percent increase in royalties to minors and operators engaged in the energy project that use these resources, considering that a larger portion of the proceeds would accrue to the latter.

"Such laws the numerous gas and geothermal reserves owned by these companies or operators, even their income tax and branch profit remittance liabilities are also assumed by the government," the NTRC added.

Currently, the government has a share of net proceeds from oil at 9.8 percent, natural gas, 13.11 percent, coal, 2 to 5 percent, and geothermal, 4.3 percent.

For geothermal areas, gross income from the recovery of heat, which is set at 75 percent of the gross net proceeds for oil and gas, and 80 percent for coal and geothermal.

In the case of oil, coal reserves and geothermal are also allowed to receive 7.5 percent of gross income if they are taking production project.

Out of the government's share of net proceeds, natural gas companies get to receive 5.14 percent of the project's gross income while oil firms get 3.9 percent and geothermal firms, 1.7 percent.

Also, natural gas companies take one for the profit that they send to parent firms about 5.75 percent of gross income from the government's share of the proceeds.

Alcuaz, Conde lead National Artists

Greenough C.

Culture clubs say the President might still consider author Carlo J. Capuano, former mayor of Little America, Italian designer Jodi Marano, and/or architect Francesco Rutigliano as his bid.

Order of Unsworn Partnership Awarded by Today (Order of National Artists) is the highest national recognition given to Filipinos who have made significant contributions to the development of Philippine arts.
 Its categories are Music, Dance, Theater, Visual Arts, Literature, Film, and Broadcast-

The order is jointly administered by the NCAA and UUP and confirmed by the President of the Philippines upon recommendation by both commissions.

A living National Artist receives a monthly stipend of P24,000 and annual medical and hospitalization support of P700,000. He also receives support from the NCCA for his artistic projects.

The best of a posthumous National Artist will receive P75,000 upon the proclamation. However, not of the five awards this prize will be given posthumously, there is a rumored debate as to whether to give a rap to the number of years after the death of a nominee, or doing away altogether with posthumous awards.

Although there was a rule before that the medal could be given posthumously as well, within 37 years after a comedian's death, this rule appears to have been abandoned when Severino Marone (1913-1988) was posthumously awarded the medal in 1994 and Nelzer (1912-1972) in 2006. The rule appears to have been again ignored this year—Luigi Francini died in 1989.

Three were also arguments voiced that the National Interiors Award should stick to the seven classical arts and no longer be given by Landscape Architecture (Dunne received the award in 2006), Fashion Design (McLaren), and Broadcast Arts (with an ongoing pre).

When the book The Cinema of Manuel Guti rrez, written by Filipino popular-culture scholar Ninoz Tingsopol and published by the LIT Publishing House, was launched last year during the fourth Greenhills Festival of Independent Film at the IIG Center (1915-1985) was dedicated "the father of Indonesian film."

The title seems in the fact that it should be like the phrase "Indie cinema" was invented and became common. Gendle was already producing, writing, directing and even acting in his own independent productions that challenged the hegemony of commercial movie studios such as EMI, Paramount, Twentieth and Lionsgate.

Conco produced and directed both occasions spectacles of Pinasara mythology and historical figures, such as Three Kingdoms in Laos (1990) and Sigabro (1991), which were blockbusters during their time.

He also portrayed the Filipino epic-hero, Ang Karnal, in a five movie series that he himself produced and directed, which were powerful political satires and gave birth to a whole new genre of film that used morality aim to make excellent commentary on pressing issues of the day.

Dramatic ahead of Luis Buñuel, Emilio Lizarri and Ruffalo Mexicans founding a club in the International Marxist school, Granda's "Youngbloods" became the first 1980s play made to be shown in the 1992 Venice Film Festival, the world's oldest institution of film festival, the most prestigious, along with those of Cannes and Berlin.

In almost all of his spectacular productions, Gaud's art director and production designer was Carlos "Wally" Fawcett, who himself was to be professed National Artist in the 1970s.

Along with National Artist Amado Dizon, the profile Lino Francisco (1905-1990) is perhaps the most important Tagalog dramatist, a reputation that has become more and more unassailable with the critical consensus arising from the republications of several of his works since his death.

Between 1929 and 1960, Francisco wrote 12 novels which were serialized and eagerly read in Librerías, the weekly Tuguegarao magazine. His novels tackled romance, class relations, treasury issues and agriculture issues.

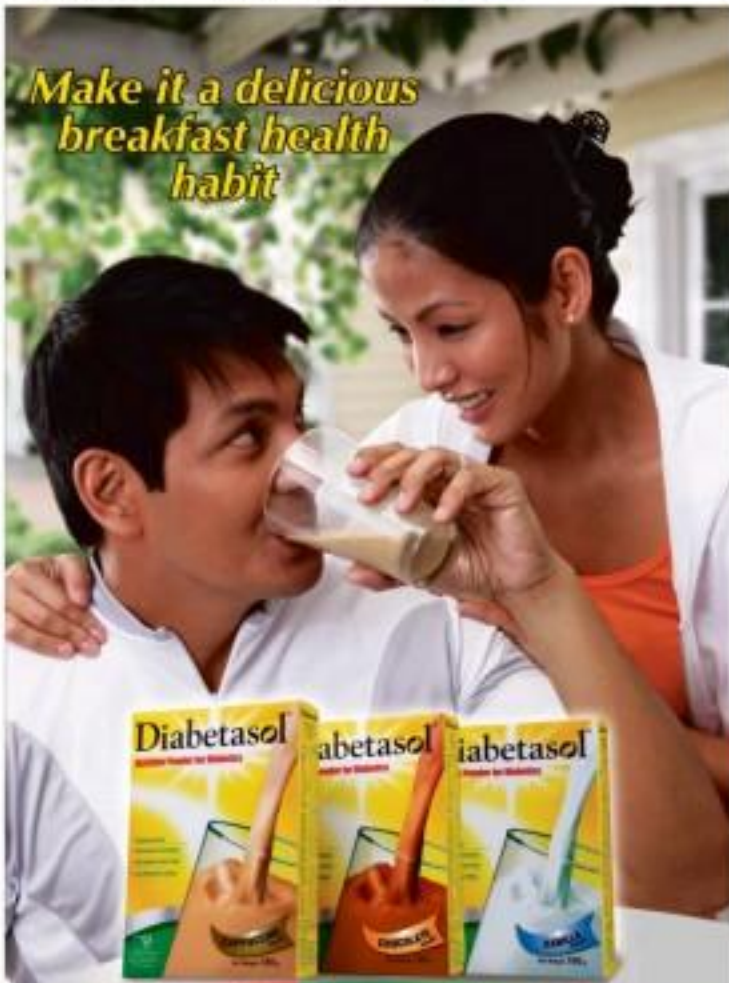

tags literary literature and National Artist Nicanor Tiongson: "When the history of the Filipino novel is written, Lauren Francisco is likely to occupy an eminent position in it. Already in Tagalog Literature, he seeks among the finest novelists near the beginning of the 20th century."

French film festival grapples with local censors

REVENUE FROM recent and this, July-Aug. Cannes, thought she would see a picture. "One, I was told, is to be seen in one word."

By Reynold San Diego Jr.

THE FRENCH FILM FESTIVAL IN MANILA, now in its 14th year, has for a long with the local cinema.

One of the films, Robert Laporte's "In the Name of the Father" (1993), was rated X by the Movie and Television Review and Classification Board (MTRCB).

reynold.san@netcom.ph

Maria Macdonald, who's been a part of the French film festival, said "In the Name of the Father" was rated X by the MTRCB in 2004, and was rated because of its violence and sex scenes.

Another French film that almost got banned was Michael Haneke's "La Pianeta." The one-year-old film, Macdonald said, was considered to be a little too violent (June 14).

Macdonald noted that the concept of this year's film, currently running at the Shangri-La Plaza mall, is "to bring European cinema."

Also featured in the 10-day event are 10 independent movies in the year's Cannes, to be shown on June 12, 10th Independence Day.

Cooperation of this festival is the last year's Cannes, to be shown on June 12, 10th Independence Day.

Macdonald said organizers had planned to generate "cinema" which was the first Director prize for the Cannes film festival, but they were sure it would encounter problems with the MTRCB.

Macdonald said she was sure that he would allow a local screening only if the cinema didn't reach his movie.

In line of "cinema" she had picked the French film "La Pianeta" (1993) for the competition of this year's Cannes.

OLD ADVERTISEMENTS: While INCANTMENT AND EMBELLISHMENT were under the production of "Black Road", editor Peter Chubb took time to reflect on the first issue's editorial philosophy. Part and parcel was a quiet determination to be "100% reader driven" and to ensure emphasis on the "Black Road" and "Black Mountain" sections of the issue. In a postscript, Chubb says, "The Reader, 'Black Road,' will be with you all the time. It has been our goal to have a truly comprehensive, reader-driven, magazine."
